Diana Garber, Feng Shui Master for Intuitive Concepts says, “2013 promises to be a major year for change! Preparation is key for success.”

SUNBURY, OH, (November 30, 2012) – Diana Garber is asked each year to speak about energy for the upcoming year. She does extensive research on energy trends and performs her analysis. Ms. Garber is a classically-trained international Feng Shui consultant who just completed the first Feng-Shui designed and constructed office building in the U.S. In addition to her accreditations in the U.S. and Australia, she was accredited in 2005 as a clinical instructor and Feng Shui practitioner for The Ohio State University.

Diana’s mastery in the ancient study of classic Feng Shui incorporates quantum physics principles and algorithms in order to derive statistical assessments that she shares with her commercial and residential clients. Her response when asked about 2013 is “it is a year of great change.” “From a Feng Shui perspective, it is a five year ... transformation. That can be good if you’re proactive. If you aren’t proactive, it could be a year of challenges and lessons. In this type of energy, energy doubles so to speak. Think of it this way -- several planets align and the pull of gravity is stronger. That pull affects all of us.” Garber says. Therefore, the energy that affects people, their homes, and their businesses will show increases in positive ways but it will also intensify the negative risks depending on the direction and the flow of energy.

The 1 energy of the North is related to communication and business success. The 6 energy of the Northwest affects authority and wisdom. The 8 energy for 2013 affects wealth accumulation and real estate. The 7 energy of the West indicates things being taken away or ideas stolen. The 2 energy of the Southwest can bring with it illness or and accidents; and the 4 energy of the Southeast supports romance and travel. Finally, the energy of the South is all about change – how it is managed can lead to promotions and celebrations or health risks (heart and eyes). Then there are certain months that present more challenges, and certain months that create more opportunities. This is a deep and intricate process and requires the services of a master practitioner to help translate the true meaning of these numbers and their relationship to your living and working environments.

Ideally, contacting Master Garber would be the best approach to learn about 2013, the Year of the Water Snake. In fact, her insights are in demand from October through March for returning clients who utilize her strategies to capitalize on the upcoming year.

Of course the best approach is to obtain a consult of your own – one that is completely customized for your business or home. Another option is a DVD of one of her in-demand presentations that provides insights and tips for 2013. Knowledge and awareness are the best way to prepare for change.
